Corporate Identity & Governing Documents Statement

A clear distinction between the U.S. legal entity and international business relationships

LEGAL ENTITY	TerraHash Energy LLC | California, United States

This statement provides a concise explanation of TerraHash Energy LLC's U.S. legal identity, the hierarchy of relevant corporate records, and the standards used to distinguish affiliated business history from the California company's own record.

01 U.S. corporate identity

1.1 TerraHash Energy LLC is identified in its corporate information as a California limited liability company with U.S. business operations based in Los Angeles, California.

1.2 The Company is a separate legal entity. The use of a common business name, shared branding, international business relationships, or affiliated ownership does not cause the legal records or obligations of one entity to become those of another.

1.3 The Company's corporate statements and agreements use its proper legal name and identify the applicable entity when referring to distinct affiliates, ownership relationships, or historical operations.

02 Governing instruments

2.1 The Company's formation and governance are determined by its Articles of Organization, Operating Agreement, valid amendments, required filings, and applicable law.

2.2 The Operating Agreement governs the Company's internal affairs and the rights and obligations of its members and managers in accordance with California law. It is maintained by the Company and is not filed with the California Secretary of State as a public formation record.

2.3 Company decisions, resolutions, member or manager consents, and delegated authority operate within the terms of these governing instruments. An informational statement or website publication does not replace or amend an executed legal document.

03 Ownership and management

3.1 Membership interests and related economic or governance rights are determined by the applicable Company records and agreements. Ownership and management are legally distinct concepts, and any distribution of powers is controlled by the governing instruments.

3.2 Appointments, signing privileges, banking authority, and management responsibilities are recorded according to the legal structure of the California LLC. Roles held in an affiliated entity are not automatically roles in TerraHash Energy LLC.

3.3 The Company uses accurate terminology for members, managers, executives, advisers, and any separately constituted governing body rather than assuming the structure of a public corporation.

04 International affiliations and historical information

4.1 International business history may be relevant to the background and experience associated with TerraHash Energy. Such history is attributed to the entities and operations to which it actually belongs.

4.2 The Company distinguishes the California LLC's formation and operating record from historical milestones, financial results, projects, or appointments associated with related or predecessor businesses.

4.3 Descriptions of international ownership, offices, or group structure are based on the appropriate entity records and do not imply regulatory status, corporate affiliation, or operational control beyond the documented facts.

05 Public corporate information and document access

5.1 The Company makes accurate corporate information available through appropriate business channels while observing contractual, privacy, and legal obligations.

5.2 Formation records, statutory filings, company policies, agreements, and governance summaries serve different purposes. Public informational materials are not presented as certified filings, notarized records, or executed agreements.

5.3 This statement is an explanatory corporate publication. It is not an Operating Agreement, a certificate of good standing, a substitute for an official registry extract, or an amendment to any binding Company instrument.
