U.S. executive leadership

Natalie Hayes serves as Chief Executive Officer and Executive Director of TerraHash Energy LLC. She leads the company's U.S. business operations and executive management, including strategic priorities, organizational development, business execution, and energy infrastructure development activities.

The U.S. executive management structure provides centralized leadership for current business functions. Human Resources and People Operations support people and workplace administration; Financial Research & Digital Asset Market Analysis contributes industry and market analysis that informs management's assessment of energy, capital and digital-infrastructure developments.

As the senior executive responsible for U.S. operations, Natalie sets the direction for management priorities, coordinates accountable execution across business functions and provides leadership continuity as the company develops its energy infrastructure activities. The role connects corporate objectives with the work of operational and professional teams.

The company's operating model distinguishes executive management, functional administration, specialist research and board-level governance responsibilities. This division of responsibilities supports continuity, clarity of accountability, and consistent collaboration among current teams.

Company leadership and functional teams

Name	Position	Primary responsibilities
Natalie Hayes	Chief Executive Officer · Executive Director	U.S. executive management, strategy, organizational direction and operating priorities
Mohamed Ayman Eldeeb	Human Resources	Executive recruitment, candidate coordination, talent strategy and workforce planning
Anna	Human Resources · People Operations	Employee coordination, onboarding, HR administration and internal processes
Arthur	Head of Financial Research & Digital Asset Market Analysis	Research on energy, capital markets and digital assets; analytical support for management

Mohamed Ayman Eldeeb supports the company's human-resources and executive talent functions, including professional recruitment communication and coordination of candidate processes. Anna supports People Operations and HR administration, including employee coordination, onboarding activities and internal people processes.

Arthur leads financial research and digital-asset market analysis. His function supplies market intelligence and analytical perspective for management's evaluation of energy, infrastructure and digital-asset trends; research support is a distinct function from treasury custody, banking authority or financial expenditure approvals.

Functional teams operate within a management framework led by Natalie Hayes. The company may adapt staffing and functional capacity as its U.S. business develops; this corporate overview describes the standing leadership and functional structure.

Board of Directors and committee leadership

The following individuals are identified on the TerraHash Energy Leadership page as members of the Board of Directors and its governance committees:

Name	Published board or committee role
Gu Cheng'an (Cheng'an Gu)	Executive Director & Chairman of the Board
Lu Jingchuan (Jingchuan Lu)	Independent Director & Chair of Compensation Committee
Lin Zhiyuan (Zhiyuan Lin)	Independent Director & Chair of Corporate Governance and Nomination Committee
Michael Gu (Mingyuan Gu)	Independent Director
Henry Shen (Hongyi Shen)	Independent Director & Chair of Audit Committee

The Board provides strategic oversight and governance expertise. Executive responsibility for the day-to-day U.S. business of TerraHash Energy LLC is carried out under Natalie Hayes's leadership. Board and executive responsibilities are presented as separate functions.

Gu Cheng'an is presented as Executive Director and Chairman of the Board. Lu Jingchuan chairs the Compensation Committee; Lin Zhiyuan chairs the Corporate Governance and Nomination Committee; Michael Gu contributes as an Independent Director; and Henry Shen chairs the Audit Committee. Their published profiles collectively reflect the company's focus on governance quality, leadership oversight, executive compensation, nomination processes and financial accountability.

The board and committee titles are presented as part of TerraHash Energy's published leadership structure. They do not change the distinction between governance responsibilities and Natalie Hayes's executive management of TerraHash Energy LLC in the United States.

Leadership continuity and corporate contact

TerraHash Energy maintains its public leadership information on its official website. The company's operating priorities, employee coordination and business communications are carried out through the management and functional teams described above. The company maintains continuity through its established executive management and functional responsibilities.

Leadership Coordination and Operating Continuity

TerraHash Energy's organizational structure is designed to keep executive direction, administrative support and governance oversight aligned. Natalie Hayes provides the central management link across strategy, execution and organizational leadership, while the company's professional functions help ensure continuity in day-to-day operations and internal coordination.

This structure supports a clear chain of leadership for current business activities. It also enables the company to expand capabilities over time without changing the underlying distinction between executive management, professional functions and governance responsibilities.

Functional Collaboration

- Human Resources supports talent communication, candidate coordination and related people functions.
- People Operations supports onboarding, employee administration and internal personnel processes.
- Financial Research & Digital Asset Market Analysis contributes analytical support, market intelligence and sector perspective relevant to management planning.
- Board and committee leadership contribute governance quality, oversight perspective and broader leadership stewardship.

Organizational Clarity

This document presents the company's standing leadership and organizational structure as part of its corporate information. Recruitment activity, role-specific employment terms or future staffing additions are communicated separately through the company's Careers and HR channels and are not required for the continuing relevance of this organizational overview.
