CORPORATE GOVERNANCE / 05 OF 08

Leadership Standards & Fair Opportunity Policy

Professional merit, respect, and constructive participation

LEGAL ENTITY	TerraHash Energy LLC | California, United States

The Company's long-term development depends on capable teams, ethical leadership, and fair access to opportunity. This policy articulates standards for professional selection, conduct, and development.

01 Professional commitment

1.1 TerraHash Energy LLC seeks to build a workplace in which qualified professionals are respected, evaluated fairly, and supported in making meaningful contributions to the business.

1.2 Different professional experiences and perspectives can improve decision-making across energy, project development, infrastructure, finance, digital systems, and operations. Leadership choices remain anchored in job-related qualifications, performance, and lawful practices.

1.3 The Company applies standards of professional integrity and accountability to executives, managers, employees, and persons acting on its behalf.

02 Equal opportunity and merit-based decisions

2.1 Employment-related decisions are based on legitimate business considerations and made consistently with applicable federal, California, and local equal employment opportunity laws.

2.2 The Company prohibits unlawful discrimination, harassment, and retaliation. Employees and applicants are treated with professionalism and are afforded applicable workplace protections, including legally required accommodations.

2.3 Selection standards are connected to the responsibilities of the position, and candidates are evaluated on relevant qualifications rather than assumptions or stereotypes.

03 Leadership practices

3.1 Leaders communicate expectations clearly, provide constructive feedback, promote appropriate collaboration, and respond to business and personnel concerns without retaliation.

3.2 Management encourages practical problem-solving, respect for technical expertise, responsible risk management, and documented accountability for material decisions.

3.3 Conflicts of interest are disclosed; confidential information and company assets are protected; and concerns involving unlawful or improper conduct are routed through appropriate management or professional channels.

04 Learning and development

4.1 Professional development may involve technical training, mentorship, operational exposure, cross-functional collaboration, and succession planning aligned with actual business needs.

4.2 Opportunities for advancement are evaluated through performance, readiness, capabilities, organizational requirements, and the Company's lawful personnel practices.

4.3 Employee information used in evaluation or development activities is managed with appropriate confidentiality and privacy safeguards.

05 Oversight and communication

5.1 Individuals responsible for hiring and management are accountable for applying these principles in decisions within their authority.

5.2 Concerns regarding discrimination, harassment, retaliation, or other workplace misconduct are addressed through the Company's designated reporting channels and applicable procedures.

5.3 This policy complements employment agreements, workplace rules, and applicable legal requirements; it does not alter the lawful authority of Company management or create a separate statutory governance body.

TERRAHASH ENERGY LLC